Fishing flick strikes a snag

MAYFIELD actor Paul Kelman is about to mix with a couple of fair dinkum Aussies for his latest flick.

Kelman leaves for Queensland this week to work on the new film starring Paul Hogan and Shane Jacobson of Kenny fame.

The flick is called Charlie and Boots and it's about a father and son who travel from Victoria to Cape York to fulfil their lifelong ambition to fish off Australia's northern tip.

However Kelman is not packing his bags for Queensland just yet. The pending birth of his second child with wife Leanne (also an actress) may delay his plans.

The couple, who moved from Sydney to Newcastle last year, also have a three-year-old daughter, Matilda.

Meanwhile Kelman

(producing) and Newcastle award-winning filmmaker Dean Parr have shot a new video clip for The Screaming Jets at Newcastle locations.

Kelman has worked on television series such as A Country Practice, E Street, Flying Doctors, All Saints and McLeod's Daughters.

He teaches screen acting at Hunter TAFE.
