

Jets still rockin' by any other name

NEWCASTLE-founded rock group The Screaming Jets will release their first studio album in eight years next week.

Do Ya! is the first single and title track from the album, released through SonyBMG on October 11.

With various line-up changes over the years (including the departure of Newcastle guitarist Grant Walmsley last year) just one current member, Izmet

Osmanovich (guitar), remains living in the Hunter.

Frontman Dave Gleeson, pictured, lives in the Adelaide Hills with his wife Katie, an ex-record company executive, and children Bella and James.

Gleeson says the record is the epitome of what Australian rock is all about.

"When we went into the studio to record this album, we said no matter what style we tackle, let's remember that we are a rock band doing different styles," Gleeson said.

"If we are doing jazz, we are doing jazz but we are doing it from a rock band's perspective. And I think, coming out and listening to all the songs, which have different influences and different flavours, at the end, it is still a rock album done by a rock band."

